

Timing Blight Control Spray around Bud Burst

It is recommended that the first so-called 'bud burst' spray is applied when 50% of the terminal buds (the ones on the ends of the shoots, sometimes multiple buds on small spurs at the ends) are burst. If you can see the form of the leaflets emerging from the bud then it is burst. The one in the top right below is just burst, you can just see the form of the leaflets. The bottom left is pretty much at the same stage as is the one in the next photo.

Here are some pictures of buds which have not yet reached the critical stage.

Here are some pictures of some buds which are well past the 'critical' bud burst stage.
